

Privacy Policy

What type of information we collect:

We collect the following personal information in order to process, fulfill and ship your order: your name and email address, your billing & shipping address (not your credit card number) and your phone number. It is important to mention, that our payment system is chosen to provide you with the highest possible level of protection. If you place your order online, your credit card information is encrypted and not even our employees will ever see or have access to your complete credit card number.

What we do with this information:

The information we collect from you are for the sole purpose of processing, fulfilling and shipping your order and to provide you with the best possible customer service. We might contact you via e-mail or phone in order to keep you informed about the inventory status, other important information or changes of your order. None of your information will be shared with any outside party except for the shipping company we use to ship your products.

How we protect your personal information:

We do not collect any of your information while you are browsing our website. The only time we collect your information is at the time you place your order in our secured checkout section. All pages of our website where you are asked to provide your personal information are protected by an extremely secure and powerful industry-standard Secure Sockets Layer (SSL) encryption. This is the same security standard that is used by most financial institutions for their online banking. Our payment system goes even one step further so not even our employees will ever see or have access to your complete credit card number if the order is placed online.
